LABOR'S INNOVATION.

The Proposal to Pay Members of Parliament Causing Great Consternation.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. LONDON, Sept. 13.—The trades-union congress has thrown a bombshell into the Liberal camp by their resolution in favor of salaries for members of Parliament. This means the introduction of the labor element to an important degree to the House of Commons, where it has now barely a foothold. The House is no longer what it was before the latest extension of the franchise, but the changes have been confined almost entirely to the unseating of squires and the younger sons of nobility to give the place to factory managers and wealthy grocers and brewers, and other tradesmen. With the exception of a few men like Burt and Fenwick the labor element is as yet without class representation. It is desired to change all this and make it possible for poor men to aspire to Parliament by enacting that the treasury shall pay a regular stipend to members. Such a change would be, in the eyes of Englishmen, almost significant of revolution. It would mean the abolition of the old Parliament in the fullest sense, and the first step in the legislative triumph of radicalism. The Liberal party is far from being prepared to accept the salary proposition, and thus throw down the bars to the Radicals. It is believed that Mr. Gladstone himself will hesitate to go that far. At a Liberal meeting in October there is likely to be a warm discusion of the subject.

Arizona and All Hands Lost. London, Sept. 13 .- The steamship Arizons, of the Guion line, which left New York Sunday, Sept. 6, arrived at Queenstown to-day in a badly battered condition. On the 6th while steaming in a fog an unknown vessel, supposed to be a coasting schooner, collided with the Arizona. The shock was very great and aroused the passengers from their beds. For a time the greatest excitement reigned, until it was found that the steamer was not, as many feared, about to go to the bottom. The stem of the schooner stuck to the Arizona's port quarter. Thirty feet of the rail of the steamship were carried away and a life boat smashed. The deck was considerably damaged and several plates of the vessel's side were badly indented. While the extent of the damage was being investigated boats were prepared for the use of the passengers and every preparation possible made for the saving of life in case the steamship should prove a wreck. Fears of catastrophe agitated the passengers, suddenly awakened by the shock. Not a sign was seen nor a cry heard from the schooner. The terrible shock had apparently crushed the sailing vessel in a twinkling and caused her to founder. Part of the bowsprit of the schooner remained on the Arizona's deck, and other wreckage indicated the

A passenger makes the following statement: "After passing Sandy Hook we entered a haze, which later became a dense fog. The fog horn was kept blowing. About 11 P. M. a loud report like the bursting of a boiler startled the passengers, who rushed on deck. The captain, was on the bridge, ordered the engines reversed at full speed. He assured the passengers that the steamer was all right, and ordered them below. Afterwards the officers stated that a three masted ship had struck the Arizona on the port side, almost midshipse and then disappeared. The fog steamwhistles and fog-horn were kept going long after the collision, but nothing was discovered. The steamer's pumps were started but no water was found. So violent was the collision that passengers sleeping on the damaged side of the steamer were thrown from their berths."

Loss by the Earthquake in Salvador Placed at $500,000-Shocks at Valparaiso. SAN SALVADOR, Sept. 13.—The waters in Llapango, Cojutepeque, or Illabasco lake, as it is variously known, keep on rising. The workmen sent by the government to open an ontlet to the ocean are still hard at work. The shocks continue to be felt at irregular intervals. The earthquake of Sept. 8 was experienced all over the country. The material losses are estimated at $500,000, although this seems a low figure.

VALPARAISO, Sept. 13 .- Two severe earthquakes occurred yesterday morning. The first was experienced at 7:40 o'clock, and created general alarm. It was of a few seconds' duration. Before the people had recovered from their fright a second shock took place, at 7:45 o'clock. It was feared that they were only forerunners of more serious shocks, but happily no others occurred. There was no damage done to property and no one was injured.

Presidential Election in Honduras. TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras, Sept. 12.-The election has been completed. General Leibas secured a very large vote for President. His majority is estimated at threefourths of the total amount. The balloting was conducted in a perfectly peaceful manner throughout the republic. There was no restriction of the freedom of the press or of the voters. General Leibas's inanguration as President will take place in November. The universal opinion is that President Bogram has shown himself a true patriot.

Losses by Fire. QUEBEC, Sept. 13 .- Fire started this morning in a grocery occupied by Quelett, at Cape Bianc, and destroyed twenty-nine houses and a portion of the Roman Catholie Church. A portion of Quelett's place was found to have been saturated with coal-oil. When this fact got abroad an infuriated mob procured a rope and were about to lynch him when the police rescued him and placed Quelett in jail.

Twenty Cases of Diphtheria in Shelbyville and the Dreaded Disease Spreading.

Special to the Indianapolis Journa!. SHELBYVILLE, Sept. 13 .- On account of the great prevalence of diphtheria in this city the City Council was called together last night to take steps to stop the spread of the disease, and quarantine the territory infected. More than twenty families, mostly in the east end of town, have cases of diphtheria, and it is feared the disease may become an epidemic if it hasn't already. The opening of the schools has been postponed until Sept. 21, and a general cleaning up has been ordered by the Council. Property all over the city must be dis-infected, and the removal of pig-pens is ordered. A number of deaths have already occurred.

Fled to Avoid a Lynching.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. RICHMOND, Sept. 13 .- About 12:30 c'clock this morning a pair of jaded horses, with five men in a carriage, pulled up at the county jail. They had come from Liberty. and the mission was to incarcerate for safer keeping Bud Rial, the young negro wanted at Oxford, O., for assaults upon several women. He was apprehended on the C., H. & I. track, near Liberty, and a lynching party, from Oxford went to Liberty about midnight, to find Rial had been taken away. Rial is only eighteen years old and a monumental liar if guilty of any of the offenses charged, for he denies each of them. He accounts for his leaving Oxford by saying he was going to Connersville to see a cousin recently married. He shows no fear, and talks as if he would be all right when these would-be lynchers discovered their mistake.

Police Rake in a "Jack Pot."

Special to the Indianapoits Journal. COLUMBUS, Sept. 13 .- For some time a large number of young men and boys of this city have been spending their Sundays gambling in the woods and groves near the city limits. They have usually kept a guard to warn them of approaching officers. l'o-day, however, the game became very interesting, and all engaged in it and had up a large sum of money, when the police walked upon them. Six were arrested and placed under bond for their appearance at the coming term of court, in consequence of which as many prominent families are in trouble on account of the exposure of their sons.

CUNNING OF A DEFAULTER.

Stole $20,000 and a Million of Securities to Force a Bank to Compromise.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Sept. 13. - The Examiner prints the following story concerning the robbery of the Fidelity Trust Bank at Tacoma by its secretary, Edward Albertson, on Aug. 24 last: It was heretofore believed that Albertson lost some $9,000 only in speculation, and surprise was caused by the extraordinary efforts made to capture him. It now appears he took $20,000 in cash and nearly $1,000,000 in securities. Early on the morning of Aug. 24 a note was received by Paul Schultze, a director of the bank, from Albertson, saying he had lost $10,000 of the bank's money in speculation and to force a compromise had taken ten thousand more in cash and nine hundred thousand in securities. He would meet him or one of his representatives in the woods at a designated place and return the securities if given a written agreement not to prosecute. The point chosen gives a commanding view of all the approaches, and Albertson said he he would flee at once if he saw more than one man coming to the rendezvous. Moreover, he had changed the combination to the vaults, and it would take three days to open them without it. Meanwhile the bank's credit would suffer. A meeting of the directors was held, and it was agreed to accept a compromise. A man was sent to the rendezuous with a signed agreement not to prosecute. Instead of Albertson, he found one Chandler, a Tacoma gambler, who was evidently an accomplice. The messenger gave him the agreement and received the securities and the combination to the vaults. The men separated and the messanger saw Albertson join Chandler. The bank at once commenced extraordinary efforts to capture the thieves. J. H. Cahoon, cashier of the Fidelity Bank and brother-in-law of Albertson, was arrested by detective Sullivan, who confined him in a hotel for several days trying to force a con-fession. The story got out and Sullivan was forced to release the prisoner, who was then legally arrested for complicity. Last Thursday Sullivan and two guards boldly kidnaped R. B. Albertson, a second cousin of the absconder and W. E. Bailey, who happened to be with him in the streets of Seattle in broad daylight. The kidnapers were followed and arrested and their prisoners freed. Albertson was suspected of complicity in his cousin's actions. It is believed the thieves have escaped.

RAIN-MAKING FOLLY.

Some Facts Which Make the Texas Efforts Appear Ridiculous. Pittsburg Dispatch.

B. E. Fernow, Chief of Division of Forestry, has just made public a number of data bearing on the artificial production of rain which will go far towards correcting the erroneous impressions which the report of the recent so-called rain-making in Texas have created in the minds of many. Mr. Fernow questions General Dyrenforth's ability to make rain. "What is the use," he asked, "of exploding a few hundred weight of dynamite, when it is well-known fact that 100 tons of powder exploded at the Dupont works within eight seconds without producing one raindrop!"

He quotes Arago to show that in France they are off batteries to dispel rain and he proves that the popular idea about rain, following great battles is all a mistake. After dismissing the theory of artificial rain through the use of explosives, Mr. Fernow proceeds to discuss the theory of rain and the simulation of natural causes by human agency. As air rises it expands, as it expands it cools, as it cools it condenses contained moisture. Hence to produce upward or downward currents of air, or to produce changes of temperature, is one chief mode of making rain indicated by nature. But the scientist, who knows that the barometer must fall, say, a half inch over hundreds of thousands of square miles before a storm can be produced, laughs to scorn man's puny efforts to produce such stupendous effects to order. It was found that in forty-two large fires, and two serious explosions, in Australia during twenty-one years, there was not one instance of rain as a consequence of that cause. In other such cases, as the London and Chicago fires, when rain has followed, analysis of the atmospheric conditions traces the rain chiefly to them and not to the fire. The fallacy of a great deal of what is being said on this subject is further shown by the fact which was satisfactorily demonstrated by the government astronomer of New South Wales, that to produce rain artificially it would be necessary to burn 9,000,000 tons of coal daily, thus raising a column of air over a surface of ten miles to the height of 1,800 feet.

A WEAK-HEARTED ADMIRAL, Curious Facts in Regard to the Great Spanish Armada.

Fawley.

London Daily News. Mr. Froude has done his countrymen an evil turn. For three hundred years we have taken a pride in the thought that it was the fearless and resourceful Drake, the gallant and prudent Lord Howard of Effingham who defeated the Spanish Armada. It now appears that the Spanish Admiral's stomach and the rascally frauds of the Spanish meat and biscuit contractors had much to do with it. Mr. Fronde has been rummaging again among the archives of Simancas, and, enlightened by the papers he has discovered there, he has begun to relate to the readers of "Longman" the Spanish story of Philip of Spain's abortive enterprise.

The Duke of Medina, the Spanish Admir .. - to put the case mildly-does not seem to have been of the stuff that was needed to try conclusions with Drake and his illustrious comrades. He had from the first a decided dislike to the job. "My health is bad," he wrote to the King through the royal secretary, "and from my small experience of the water I know that I am always seasick." He adds that the expedition was on such a scale and of such importance that the person at the head of it ought to understand navigation and sea fighting, and he mournfully observes, "I know nothing of either." The happy thought then strikes him that perhaps he could shuffle off the business on somebody's else's shoulders. "The Adelan- | Lagrange Standard. tado of Castile (he suggests) would do it better than I; our Lord would help him, for he is a good Christian and has fought in naval battles. If you send me, depend upon it, I shall have a bad account to render of my trust." Mr. Froude's first paper does not carry us to the final disaster, but it carries us quite far enough to justify the poor Duke's foreboding, for in another dispatch to the King he reports from Corunna that the weather, though in June, is as wild as in December, and quaintly adds that this "is the more strange since we are on the business of the Lord." He then goes on to say that his ships are dispersed, his crews sick and growing worse from bad food and water. "I told your Majesty," he exclaims, "that I was unfit for this command when you asked me to undertake it." Clearly the Spanish Admiral had not understated the case.

NOT ALL DEAD. Liars Still Enlighten the Gentle Reader on

Elmira Telegraph. A California exchange editor had begun to think lying was played out in the Pacific slope press, until he encountered the fol-

The barn caught fire, and the air was filled with dense showers of pop-This extraordinary exhibition caused an old mare in the adjoining field to think that winter was at hand. So she lay down under three feet of pop-corn and froze to death."

"Eureka!" he murmured, "the country is safe." Afterward followed, in quek succession, the veritable accounts that during the past week have enlivened the monotony of the country crop reports, and divided the bonors of public attention with the grasshopper of the San Joaquin and the San Jose scale. There was the Winters woman, whose turkeys got drunk on brandied cherries thrown out as waste, and who, thinking them dead, plucked these misguided birds, as many another boozy bird has been plucked, and was filled with horror some time latter to see them, recovered from their spree, walking about clad only in their own manifest embarrassment.

There was the petrified girl from France, found after many years with her feet grown fast to the solid rock, of which she had become a part, and who still maintains a stony silence as to how she came so. There was the tree cut by loggers up on the Columbia, the trunk of which was found to be full of bears, and which was headed up and rolled down to town with its over-load of Ephraim in good shape. In fact, enough evidence passed before the exchange editor's searching eye to demon-strate clearly that the journalistic Ananias of the Pacific coast is doing business at the

75 and 77 S. PENNSYLVANIA St charge big prices here, while abroad they had to take lower prices because they entered into competition with machines made in England. Such statements as these were made with intent to deceive, but the free-traders forgot there was a means of finding whether they were telling the truth or not. Twenty-six shippers of machinery and implements from New York were recently interviewed, and each of them produced books to show that their wholesale prices to purchasers abroad were the same as those received from buyers at home. If it be the case that foreign farmers can obtain their implements cheaper than their prototy pes at home, then the merchants abroad must be operating in American machinery at a heavy loss, for the freight must be added to the cost price in New York. It is hardly to be reasonably expected that foreign merchants will stand in with American free-traders and suffer immense losses for the sake of allowing them to prate about lower prices abroad than at home for American goods.

Don't Throw Dirt on the Colors. The Standard is not urging anybody or depreciating anybody, but it is urging that the administration of Benjamin Harrison is the grandest and cleanest peace administration since Washington. Other administrations have been entitled to credit for doing nothing bad, but none in days of peace have the actual achievements for good, as Republicans see the good, that have characterized the administration of the man from Indiana and his shrewdlychosen Cabinet. By that sign we conquer in 1892. The advice of a private would be, don't throw dirt on the colors, please, when you are dashing around in your personal

TARIFF LITERATURE FOR ALL.

The American Protective Tariff League is publishing a most valuable series of tariff documents. These are prepared with a view not only to state the facts and arguments for protection, but also to convince doubtful voters, whether they are farmers, laborers, merchants or professional men. Each issue of the series appeals to those engaged in separate industries, and presents indisputable facts, comparisons of wages, cost of living, and other arguments showing the benetits of protection. Recent issues include the following. Single document, 2 cer's: the entire list, 20 cents:
